Acknowledgements  xiii
Introduction  1
Perspectives on workplace injury  2
Purpose of this book  4
Preventing workplace injury  5
Compensating workplace injury  6
Major conclusions  8

ONE  Employment Relationships in Canada  [ I] I
Employment in a capitalist economy  12
The labour market and the wage-rate bargain  12
The labour process and the wage-effort bargain  13
Power and rules in employment  14
The common law  15
Changing definitions of work  18
Workplace safety and the profit motive  19
Compensation through the courts  20
Alternatives to litigation  22
Do employers intentionally transfer costs?  23
Conclusion  24

TWO  Preventing Workplace Injury  [ 27 ]
Development of occupational health and safety in Canada  28
  Perspectives on risk  28
  Market model of occupational health and safety  29
  Inevitability and the careless worker  30
  The social construction of accidents  32
  Pressure for state regulation  34
  The Factory Acts  34
  Injury compensation  35
  Why workers’ compensation?  36
THREE

Critique of OHS in Canada 47

Recognizing injury and hazards 48
How many injuries? 48
Who gets hurt affects injury recognition 49
The type of injury and its cost also affect recognition 50
Employers may impede injury recognition 51
The social construction of injury and hazards 51
Employer tactics in contesting injury recognition 52
Perpetuating the careless worker myth 53
Identifying occupational cancer 54
Preventing occupational cancer 55
Constructing cancer as a non-issue 56
Conceptual models of injury 57
Limits to the biomedical model 58

Regulating workplace hazards 59
Approaches to regulation 59
Limits on regulation 60
The internal responsibility system 61
Knowledge is power? 62
Joint health and safety committees 63
The right to refuse 65
Employer responses to refusals 66
Refusal as a weak right 67
Effectiveness of the internal system 67
Exposure levels and threshold limit values 68
Are exposure levels safe? 69
Why do exposure levels always go down? 70
Inspections and inspectors 71
Bias in inspections 73
The effect of orders 73
Prosecution and fines 74
Partnerships and the mantra of “safety pays” 76
Creating evidence of safe workplaces 78
Disabling injury rate and severity 80
Measures as conceptual technologies 82
Why use inadequate measures? 83

Conclusion 85

FOUR

Political Economy of Preventing Workplace Injury 89

Why regulate ineffectively? 89
  Context of state action 89
  Regulation of workplace injury 91
  Inadequate standards 91
  Regulation of hazards in the workplace 93
  Ignorant and reckless? 93
  Social sanction of workplace injury 94
  Ineffective penalties 95
  Why regulate ineffectively? 97
  How is this legitimized? 98

Injury in the new economy 99
  Work intensification 100
  Precarious employment increases risks 101
  What do intensification and precarious employment tell us? 102

Conclusion 103

FIVE

Compensation of Workplace Injury 105

Workers’ compensation in Canada 106
  Overview of workers’ compensation 106
  Development of workers’ compensation in Canada 107
  Workers’ compensation as a compromise 109

Injury recognition revisited 111
  Determining compensability 111
  “Arises and occurs” 113
Balance of probabilities and presumptions 113
Politics of injury recognition 114
Work-related musculoskeletal disorders and causation 116
Occupational diseases 118
Limiting liability: Psychological injuries 119
Chronic pain syndrome 121

Conclusion 122

SIX
Worker Benefits and Claims Management 125

Earnings-loss benefits 126
Deeming earnings 127
Permanent disabilities and the dual-award system 128

Other benefits 129
Vocational rehabilitation and early return to work 129
Is early return to work a good idea? 131
The political economy of ERTW 132
Medical services 133
Fatalities 134

Funding workers’ compensation 135
Employer premiums 135
Rising premiums 136
Moral hazard 137
Experience-rating schemes 139
Effect of experience rating on injury frequency 140
Effect of experience rating on injury duration 141
Rationale for experience rating 142

Conclusion 143

SEVEN
Managing Workers via Injury Compensation 145

Claim adjudication and administration 147
Impeding a shared understanding 148
Mobilizing workers 148
Role of trade unions 149

Appeals 150
Internal reviews and external appeals 151
How appeal processes advantage employers 152
Adversarialism in appeals 153
Political economy of appeals 154
Impact on workers 156

Privatization and abolishment 157
Argument for returning to tort 158
Operation of tort-based compensation 158
Comparing tort and workers' compensation 160
Privatization 161
Impact of privatization 162
Who chooses the insurer? 162
Cost savings under privatization 163
Economic globalization as an explanation 165
Managing worker demands 166

Precarious employment 167
Precarious work 167
Precarious work and worker-related injuries 169
Precarious work and workers' compensation 170
Implications of precarious work for workers' compensation 170

Conclusion 171

EIGHT

Conclusion [173]
Why are workers injured on the job? 174
Why don’t government injury-prevention efforts work? 175
Do governments actually prioritize profit over safety? 176
Why don’t workers call “hooey” on this approach? 177
Can workers protect themselves? 178
Do safety incentives reduce injuries? 179
But how does government legitimize prioritizing profit over safety? 179
Who benefits from injury compensation? And how? 181
How does compensation legitimize limiting employer liability? 182
Occupational disease as a microcosm 182
So what? 184
Are workers our most valuable resource? 185
Is there really no such thing as an accident? 186
The political economy of workplace injury 186

Notes 189

Select Bibliography 259

Index 265